My dearest Arthur,

On my return yesterday from Sturminster where I went for my duty I found a card from Frank allowing me to forward his letter. I am sure you will be sorry for him (tho' all he says about binding is mere mistake as I have told him - books being frequently inaccessible for that reason, as I have found to my annoyance in former days). - I am sure I have seen people balloting carelessly, & can easily conceive blunders made by blundering people. I certainly seem to recollect a funny story of some very great gun being accidentally blackballed at some election for ~~something~~ some Society - causing great astonishment & an ignoring of the vote as an obvious mistake!

I shall be very pleased if it can be
