My dear Sir,

We were truly glad to hear from you but it is a great disappointment to find that you will be leaving London so very soon after our arrival. All purpose D.V. starting on Monday, sleeping at Flossie, & reaching Paddington ^{on Tuesday morning} by the express which gets there at 11.15. -- when if you like to meet us & it is quite convenient to you to come, we shall be truly glad to see you - not however a matter of selfish convenience - for we have been so long used to travelling, & that station, that lesser arrangements be - fine is now very little trouble. Still, pray do just what is most grateful to yourself - and we shall hope to see something of you that day at my brother-in-law Mr. J. Weylett's in St. Russell St (77) where we shall be quartered for the first part of our stay in town. It is most kind of you to post from your journey on our account, and sincerely hope you will not be in any shape inconvenienced by it. Thank you for the Card of the North: Society. As I never saw the Athenaeum now (having changed it for the Reader) I have not read the notice you speak of. -

The Dialyte which we talked over much in a shopping expedition has been very successfully taken - had by a young man named Ingall in Camberwell, whom I expect you to see - his 4 inch ones nearly = a chromo-atic of that size. - And Mr. Litt's spectacles are splendid. He has made but one 10 P. inch, but now divides with them A & B of 5 Cams, which my object glass will not elongate. I saw the black separation myself last Monday evening. This is a great feat. And the horns of ♀ were charmingly sharp with chips forward. He is now ready to send a 12 inch, if anybody?

Give him an order. -

I think I mentioned to you Mr. Westons release, which seems to have been every happy & perceptible one. I don't know whether we shall have any chance of seeing him while in Town.

I hope your good parents are quite well - Please remember me kindly to them, & with Mr. Webb's very kind regards believe me, Yours truly,
J. W. Webb.

Mr. Webb desires me to add that she has got the 2 Cartes de Visite ready for you, & wishes to receive yours in return.
